Dear Frank,

Your letter of March 7th reached me recently after kicking about at various previous addresses. I moved down here to work for the CIA in mid-January. You can now reach me at the above address.

The symposium is moving forward after some delays in the presentation of a report of our round-table meeting last December. A draft of this report reached me yesterday, and I am sending it up to New Haven for discussion and distribution to the authors. I would hope that they could all supply final corrections by May 1st. Since nothing now stands in the way of a completed manuscript except the authors final revisions, I see no reason why we should not come close to meeting this deadline.

Sincerely yours,

MAX F. MILLIKAN
